DURHAM COUNTY
AT a GLANCE

DURHAM COUNTY

Durham County is consistently ranked as one of the top places in the nation to live and do business. With a growing population, thriving business community and increasing popularity as a creative and unique destination, DCo (pronounced dee-co) is an up and coming county in the country.

Our natural resources, rich history and close proximity to mountains and the coast, make our county a desirable place to call home. And DCo provides a range of services to all those who live here.

History

As early as colonial days, the area known as Durham County was important to North Carolina history. The English, Scottish and Irish settled along the waterways of the present Northeast corner of the county on land given to the Earl of Granville by the British Crown. As a result of the settlers' hard work, the area became a prosperous section of the state.

The City of Durham, named for Dr. Bartlett Durham, began as a railroad station and settlement. While Durham's official birth date is April 26, 1853 (the date that the U.S. Post Office was established), the town was not incorporated by the General Assembly until April 10, 1869. The tobacco manufacturing industry focused worldwide attention on the area after the Civil War. As a result, Durham County grew and prospered tremendously. In 1881, Durham officials sought to become an autonomous political subdivision and separated from Orange County. Durham County was formed on April 17, 1881 from land transferred from neighboring Wake and Orange counties. In 1911, an additional portion of land was added from Wake County.

The first Durham County Board of Commissioners convened its initial meeting May 2, 1881. Durham County operated under the commission form of government with the chairman serving as chief administrator until 1930, when it adopted the county manager form of government. Since that time, there have been seven county managers.

A five-member Board of Commissioners governs Durham County. Members are elected at-large, on a partisan basis by a countywide vote. Commissioners serve four-year terms and elections are held in November of presidential election years. The Board takes office at its first meeting in December following the November election, and elects a chairman and vice chairman.

The primary duties of the board include formulating policy, adopting an annual budget, establishing the annual property tax rate, appointing various officials, planning for county needs and enacting local ordinances. The Board has the authority to call bond referendums, authorize the county manager to enter into contracts and establish new programs and departments.

Work sessions occur on the first Monday of each month at 9 am, and the Board convenes its regular session at 7 pm on the second and fourth Mondays of each month. All meetings are open to the public and conducted in the Commissioners' Chambers, located on the second floor of the Durham County Administrative Complex, 200 E. Main Street, Durham. Meetings are broadcast live on local cable channel 8, and can be viewed on the County's website at www.dconc.gov.

Administration

Wendell M. Davis
County Manager

The County Manager is hired by the County Commissioners to serve as the chief administrative officer of county government. He supervises and coordinates the daily activities of departments for the Board by seeing that all orders, policies and federal or state mandates are carried out. The county manager also recommends an annual budget, makes recommendations on appropriate matters of business and represents the county in dealing with other agencies.

DCo Today

Durham County has evolved from an agricultural and manufacturing economy to attain world-class status in the areas of medicine and high technology. In the process, it has become one of the country's most desirable places to live.

The internationally known Research Triangle Park is home to more than 170 global research and development organizations including, BASF, Credit Suisse, CREE, Cisco, GlaxoSmithKline, IBM, RTI International and Syngenta. These companies and others in the park employ approximately 39,000 full-time workers and 10,000 contract workers.

Other major research and development organizations, including AW North Carolina, BD, bioMerieux, Boramed, Cormetech, and Organon Teknika are located in the northern section of the county. Burt's Bees has headquarters in downtown Durham.

Just look at some of the company we keep.

With one of the most skilled and knowledgeable work forces in the country at their disposal, it's no wonder so many companies choose to do business in Durham County.

Durham Public Schools

Durham Public Schools has 56 schools with an enrollment of approximately 32,400 students. A seven-member Board of Education, elected every four years on a nonpartisan basis, governs the unit.

Hospitals and Healthcare

Durham is the chief medical center south of Baltimore. Duke University Hospital is internationally known for its significant contributions to the study of cancer, heart disease and organ transplantation.

Duke University Health System operates Durham Regional Hospital through a sublease with Durham County Hospital Corporation, a non-profit corporation. The facility specializes in pediatrics, obstetrics, gynecology, orthopedics as well as general medicine and surgery.

The Veterans Administration Hospital provides general medicine and surgery.

Lincoln Community Health Center houses primary health programs, but provides no in-patient care.

Major Business

Durham County has a diversified economy with a strong foundation in biotechnology and life sciences, gaming and E-Learning, information technologies, nanotechnologies, and green and clean industries. We are also home to powerhouses in pharmacological research and development, financial services, healthcare and education.
